EasyEncode gives you the possibility to seamlessly create DivX files from VOB ones. By using a console line interface, you can select various options for your DivX file. In order to run the application, you need to copy your VOB files into the application's "input" directory. The program opens in Command Prompt, and it displays you a step-by-step configuration for your output file. You have the possibility to choose the region code of your DVD, changing it to the standard 23 fps or 29 fps, the latter being used for VOB files with audio sync problems. After selecting the preferred framerate, you can choose the audio stream that better suits your needs, which is scattered across ten levels of quality. As soon as you select the preferred audio stream value, the application requires your permission to use the VBR tool to encode MP3s. In order to receive the best audio quality, you can select the maximum and minimum bit rate for your output files. As these steps are completed, EasyEncode gives you the opportunity to select the overall quality of your output file. Several standard and widescreen options are available to choose from so that you can choose where do you play your output DivX, on a large or small screen. You can choose from the 4:3 or 16:9 resolutions, each with its specific properties and aspect ratios. When all the conditions are completed, a batch file that acts as a processing template is generated. When run, the batch file will create your output DivX in the designated folder, which can be played afterward. EasyEncode enables you to easily convert or rip VOB DVD files to DivX encoded streams. By using the application, you will be able to encode VOB files to the DivX format in no time.
